

NASA CONTRACTOR NEW TECHNOLOGY SUMMARY REPORT

NASA requires each research contractor and research subcontractor to report new technology to the NASA Technology Utilization Office. The required reports and corresponding schedules are as follows:

Title of Report	Form Number	Timetable
New Technology Disclosure	NASA 1679	The contractor discloses each discovery of new technology individually, at the time of its discovery.
NASA Contractor New Technology Summary Report (checkmarked "Interim")	NASA C-3041	For multi-year contracts, the contractor summarizes the previous year's disclosures on an annual basis. The first Interim New Technology Summary Report is due exactly 12 months from the effective date of the contract.
NASA Contractor New Technology Summary Report (checkmarked "Final")	NASA C-3041	The contractor submits a cumulative summary of all disclosed discoveries. The Final New Technology Summary Report is submitted immediately following the contract's technical period of performance.

New technology may be either patentable or non-patentable.

Large business contractors and large business subcontractors must disclose PATENTABLE and NON-PATENTABLE items (i.e., any invention or discovery conceived or first reduced to practice during the performance of the contract) as they are discovered.

Although small business contractors and small business subcontractors are not required to disclose non-patentable new technology, all disclosed NON-PATENTABLE and PATENTABLE new technology items are automatically evaluated for publication as NASA Tech Briefs. If an item is selected for publication as a NASA Tech Brief, a $150 check payable to the contractor (or subcontractor) innovator is awarded.
